CURES SCROFULA

Mrs. E. J. Rowell, Medford, Mass., says her mother has been cured of Scrofula by the use of four bottles of S.S.S. after having had much other treatment, and being reduced to quite a low condition of health, as it was thought she could not live.

S.S.S. Cured my little boy of hereditary scrofula which appeared all over his face. For a year I had given up all hope of his recovery, when finally I was induced to use S.S.S. A few bottles cured him, and no symptoms of the disease remain.

ADVERSE FATES.

"I am listening to you," said Annella, bending her blond little head and Mario felt that her slender hand trembled in his.

Who was Annella?

The beautiful widow of Count Giummi had found her one day, pale, desolate and exhausted, beside a dead woman in a squalid, dark room. That dead woman was the aunt of the countess and the mother of Annella, and the poverty which surrounded her was the sole inheritance of the fair young girl.

Countess Giummi, rich, admired and courted by the fine flower of aristocratic salons, lived upon vanity and coquetry. But in spite of that she had a morsel of heart, and poor Annella's little white face had the power to draw two beautiful tears, more lucent than pearls, from her great, black, enchanting eyes. If the baron, the viscount or the marquis could have seen those two pearls, surely they would have loved her even more than they did—so compassionate and tender did she seem amid the triumphs of her happy youth.

That same evening Annella reposed in a soft bed, under a counterpane of pink silk, while at the balcony window, that she had left partly open, the moon peered in and laid a tint of pallor upon the rose red divans of the elegant little room.

Two years passed after that first tranquil sleep. Annella's beauty, which early privations and sorrows had almost withered in the bud, bloomed again as if by magic. It was a pleasure to see the radiant girl: a slender little person, but with perfect curves of outline, the bust full, the throat of admirable softness, and the little head—oh, that dainty little head was like an artist's thought! Like a golden wave, the curling hair, which she wore unbound and floating, rippled down her shoulders; her eyes laughed with the color of the clear heavens under arching, delicate eyebrows that were black against the whiteness of her forehead and gave a resolute expression to her beautiful countenance. Her small, rosy mouth was always smiling; it was but a languid smile and tinged with an expression of melancholy or bitterness.

Now, after having sketched Annella's graceful figure, it seems strange not to be able to give it a background of bright colors. We know how much a brilliant setting adds to a gem, and certainly the Countess Giummi's beauty gained greatly by the luxury and richness of her dress and surroundings. A fashionable dressmaker, an artist in his line, dressed her with Parisian taste; a skillful young woman, who was maid and confidante together, combed the wealth of her dark hair that touched the floor and adapted to her shapely person stuffs, colors, flowers and jewels. From their hands the countess issued a true goddess of love, and her shrine gleaming with silks, marbles, silver and crystal increased the enchantment and rendered her marvelous to the eyes of visitors.

Poor Annella! so simple in her little muslin gown; so timid in that rich house, not her own, how could she contend for the palm with that superb queen? And it is no new thing that the bright rays of the moon dim the placid light of the quiet stars. So the hundred gentlemen that flocked into those gilded rooms had eyes only for the beautiful countess, and if they deigned to bestow a passing word or look on the timid girl, that was merely an act of homage to the reigning lady, homage that showed their admiration for her charity to a dependent. They all knew, and from her own mouth, too, the countess had taken the forsaken orphan to this beautiful home and changed her sorrow to happiness.

But was Annella really happy?

Her young heart thirsted for love. In her childhood she had been the one treasure of her poor mother, and though she had often lacked bread, air and sunlight, caresses were never wanting. She knew the sweetness of a kiss into which is transfused all a loving soul; she knew the dual life, the breath mingled with another breath from a breast palpitating with tenderness. Yes, her mother's love had taught her all these things, and taught them to her in poverty. Then came fine times, abundance of everything, new amusements every day and every hour, noisy gayeties and the luxury of carriages and dinners. But strange to say, amid all this laughter of life, her heart was narrowed, closed. She indeed no longer suffered from hunger, cold or fear of worse misfortunes but henceforth she had no one to love her, nor a simple object to call forth her own love, though she felt an overpowering need to bestow on some one all her warm, impassioned soul.

At first she had tried for this exchange of affection with her cousin, the magnificent countess. Alas! she had found her kind, courteous, generous, but frivolous, full of herself and her attractions, and incapable not only of feeling love, but even of comprehending it.

Discomfited, Annella had looked about her, and amid that array of faces, coats and decorations that made a circle around her beautiful cousin she had sought and sought. An odd girl! She had actually found those polished gentlemen empty and unsympathetic, although finely clad and unexceptionable from top to toe. How could she have dared to raise even her thoughts to the heights on which they moved? Which of them would have deigned to descend to her, a poor little orphan, sheltered by the pity of her cousin?

Thus set apart and averse to all flatteries, she led her own life, amid the festivities and the constant noise and confusion of the house.

But one evening she discovered among the crowd a newcomer—blond and handsome like herself, and like herself sad, timid and embarrassed. At once a secret sympathy attracted her toward young Mario. It seemed to her that she might be able to comfort him with her words, for surely he cherished a deep sorrow in his heart, since his fine face never brightened with lively color, and his eyes often glistened as if with restrained tears.

He welcomed sympathy so eagerly that it appeared as if he sought her, as if he came solely for her sake. And they soon talked freely together. After their first meeting, which was full of embarrassment to both of them, they passed all the reception evenings of the splendid countess together. Annella always awaited him with indescribable emotion, and when she saw him appearing in the doorway, diffident and shy, all her life was concentrated in her heart, that beat, beat as if it would burst its bonds. Then with studied carelessness he wandered through the rooms until he succeeded in placing himself at her side, from whence he did not stir until the last guests were about to leave.

Mario had told the story of his life—his poor life of discomfort and isolation. He, too, was an orphan, brought up by strangers who had speculated upon his talent. By force of study and effort he had at last made for himself a position that had enabled him to demand his liberty in exchange for a monthly payment. Never, poor soul, had he tasted the sweetness of mutual love.

Annella, in her secret heart, rejoiced at all this. For would it not be her privilege to give him the delights that he had never experienced, her task to make him forget the bitterness of so many years, and to reward him for all his sufferings? At night how many dreams of this kind peopled the virginal little room of the young girl, and in fancy she saw herself already an adored wife, clasped to the gentle and noble breast of her beloved Mario.

One thing, however, preoccupied her mind. When she met Mario for the first time a cloud of sadness had veiled his attractive countenance, a sadness behind which she had perceived a deeply wounded heart. Of that wound Mario had never spoken to her, but the cloud had not passed away, notwithstanding the love that Annella breathed toward him from her eyes, her smile, her entire personality. And then, too, there was something else that she would have wished—indeed, she expected it every evening, and always vainly—the final outburst of Mario's love. He loved her—oh! she was sure of that—but why did he not tell her so? Of course, natural timidity—the fear of troubling her simple life. He was so noble, her Mario! But finally he must explain himself. Oh! and she would not stammer in giving him a favorable answer: such a yes would escape her lips—and then what mutual joy, what warmth in their future talks! Then she would be obliged to tell it to her cousin, and the kind countess would willingly consent. But why did he not speak to her?

One evening when they were alone in the shadow of the little yellow drawing room Mario suddenly let himself go, seized her trembling hand and murmured to her, "I will—I must speak to you—at last!"

And Annella, bending her fair head and almost suffocated with emotion, replied, "I am listening to you!"

"Dear Annella," Mario began, "have you never asked yourself why I first came to this house?"

"How should I? Chance perhaps," murmured Annella, hardly able to contain her joy, while her heart cried out the answer, "For me, for me alone!"

"It was not a chance, no—I came here conquered, led by passion alone. I loved and was wild with pain before I set foot inside the house," declared Mario.

Annella trembled, not daring to interrupt him, but she would have liked to fling herself upon his neck without letting him finish, and to say to him amid a world of kisses, "Here is joy for you!" But he continued, "I loved, and today I love more than then; I suffered, and today I suffer more than ever."

The girl started and looked, wild eyed, at his face. Why did he speak of suffering? Had he not understood her great love? Or was he feigning, perhaps, in order to hear her confess it?

"Dear girl," and here Mario caressed her hand, "you indeed have comforted me, you have helped me to bear my grief; but now my anguish has reached the last degree—I know that my love will never be returned."

"No, no; you mistake!" Anella involuntarily interrupted, bending toward him.

"I mistake?" he exclaimed, with hope beaming in his glance. "Why do you say so? Do you know who it is that I love?"

And Annella, shamefaced and confused, stammered, "I imagine."

"Well," continued Mario bitterly, "if you know whom I love you will have seen for some time that she not only does not even dream of this tempest in my soul, but she would never imagine that one so low would dare to lift his eyes to her."

What! Was he going mad? Why did he talk of descending? And the girl, profoundly troubled, asked him quickly: "She! Who?"

"Your cousin, the countess, of course."

"Do you love her? Her!" And Annella could say no more. She felt a chill like ice through her veins, a ringing in her ears; she saw sparks, shadows, before her eyes—then nothing.

When she came to herself she was upon her bed, with the beautiful countess bending a little uneasily over her.

"Oh, what was the matter?" asked the countess; "have you quarreled this evening?"

"With whom?" said Annella, not yet quite herself.

"With Mario, with your impassioned Mario, who, I hope, will decide to ask me for your hand."

"Ah!" exclaimed the poor girl, "Mario loves only you."

"Me!" replied the countess, with a haughty mien. "What a stupid man!" And she went to the mirror to arrange the corsage of the scarlet gown that set off the marble whiteness of her perfect shoulders.

Annella buried her face in the pillow, and drenched it with scalding tears.—Translated from the Italian of Dominia Bazzocchi, for Short Stories, by E. C. ...

Aged at Nineteen Years.

An important bit of local history has been discovered at Salem in connection with a tombstone in the old Charter street burying ground. In the uttermost corner of this ground is a stone bearing this inscription:

"Mr. Nathan Mather died October ye 17th, 1688. An aged person that had seen but nineteen winters in this world."

The meaning of this peculiar inscription has long been a matter for conjecture among local historians. In his "American Notebooks," Nathaniel Hawthorne refers to it and says: "'An aged man at nineteen years,' saith the gravestone. It affected me deeply when I cleared away the grass from the half buried stone and read the name."

The mystery has been solved by the discovery in the Essex institute of a book entitled, "The Genealogy of the Mather Family." By this book it appears that Nathaniel Mather was born July 6, 1669, and was a brother of Cotton Mather and a son of Increase Mather.

At the age of twelve years he had thoroughly fitted for college, and he was graduated from Harvard at the age of sixteen. At twelve he had read the Old Testament in Hebrew and the new Testament in Greek, and was able to converse familiarly in Latin. He was distinguished not only for his complete mastery of languages, but for his attainments in mathematics, philosophy, history, theology and rabbinical learning, as well. At the time of his graduation he delivered an oration in Hebrew upon the state of learning among the Jews.—Boston Journal.

Where Columbus Got His Idea.

Mediæval Europe knew but very little of eastern and northeastern Asia. Many of the most learned cosmographers of the time taught that Asia stretched eastward indefinitely, and no one imagined that it had an eastern coast washed by the ocean. It was seriously taught that eastern Asia was a land of vast swamps, inhabited by monster serpents and dragons. This was the opinion that still prevailed up to within 200 years of the time of Columbus.

At this time two Venetian merchants by the name of Polo went on a vast trading expedition to the uttermost parts of Asia. They were gone many years. Upon their return the son of one of them, a young man named Marco Polo, wrote out a full account of their travels, described the empire of the grand khan (the Chinese emperor) and revealed the fact that Asia was bounded on the east by a vast ocean. He described this eastern coast minutely, with all its vast cities and its wealth of precious stones and spices.

It was from reading this book that the imagination of Columbus was fired, and he conceived the bold conception of reaching this eastern coast of Asia by sailing toward the west around the earth.

So when he discovered Cuba he had not a doubt that he had landed upon the coast of Asia, and that he looked upon the same scenes that Marco Polo had gazed upon 200 years before.—Yankee Blade.

The Floating Weeds in the Atlantic.

The gulf weed (Fucus natans) which, with its litle round "berries," is not unlike the mistletoe in form, but of a brownish yellow color, has been thought to have lost its property of rooting on rocks and to have acquired the power of living afloat. It has even been suggested that the sea marks the site of a submerged continent, apparently the lost Atlantis. Dr. Krummel holds that the weed has simply been drifted to its present position by the Gulf stream and its affluents from the West Indian islands and the Gulf of Mexico.

It is now proved that the Gulf stream is not a single narrow "river of the ocean," as Maury poetically described it, but consists of a number of currents, not only from the Mexican gulf, but the Antilles. The weed, according to Dr. Krummel, would take fifteen days to float as far north as the latitude of Cape Hatteras and five and a half months to reach the Azores. In the Sargasso sea it becomes heavy and sinks; but the supply is kept up by the Gulf stream.—London Globe.

Advice for Young Journalists.

A correspondent asks, "How shall a young man proceed who desires to become a reporter?"

Let him apply to the city editor of the paper on which he hopes to get a job. If he can bring a short letter of introduction it will not hurt him; but he doesn't need any great wad of recommendations. He should know what he can do in the way of reading and writing English, be prepared to say how old he is, if he speaks German or French, or any other foreign language; if he is in good health, if he drinks; he doesn't want to be fresh, nor does he want to be a chump. He wants to get rid of the idea that the paper needs him, but wants to impress it on the city editor (not by talking, however), that he is a good man, and that if he has had no experience he will nevertheless learn. Some papers prefer green men; they don't have to unlearn so much.—New York Sun.

Long Services in Wales.

In Wales the Sunday evening services generally last two hours. Now there can be little doubt that a service lasting two hours on a summer evening is considered too long by working men and women who have been hard at work six days running. If our chapels are to retain their hold, especially in English towns, the services must be made shorter. I have seen an advertisement from which it appeared that in one Nonconformist chapel the services are "brief, bright, brotherly." But that was not in Wales.—Liverpool Mercury.

Left Luggage.

Irate passenger, as train is moving off—Why didn't you put my luggage in as I told you?

Porter—Eh, mon; yer luggage is no sic a fule as yersel'. Ye're i' the wrang train!—London Tit-Bits.

DYSPEPSIA.

IS that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a bilious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fleshy and phlegmatic have Constipation, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.

Whatever form Dyspepsia may take, one thing is certain,

The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing more is equally certain, no one will remain a dyspeptic who will

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

It will correct Acidity of the Stomach, Expel foul gases, Allay Irritation, Assist Digestion, and, at the same time

I feel grateful for the relief it has given her, and may all who read this and are afflicted in any way, whether chronic or otherwise, use Simmons Liver Regulator and I feel confident health will be restored to all who will be advised."—WM. SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, AUGUST 27, 1892.

A NEWSPAPER man has no business to aspire to or seek an office. It's his business to try and get an office for the other fellows; to sound the praise of the candidate and keep quiet about his feelings; to whooper-up for his man and let his man forget all about him after he gets elected; to defend his candidate against the unjust attacks of the opposition and then see that whatever favors his candidate has to bestow go to the other fellow. It's his business to boom the city for all it's worth, month after month, and then see $100 worth of printing go out of the city because 10 cents can be made by so doing. It is the business of the newspaper to give every local enterprise enthusiastic and frequent "send-offs" and then catch hell because he failed to record the fact that some prominent citizen had his delivery wagon painted. To subscribe liberally to every public, charitable and church enterprise, advertise them for nothing, pay his own way to everything and then be called prejudiced and mean-spirited because a column is not devoted to that particular affair. Do you wonder that there are so many cranks in the newspaper business? It is bound to make either a crank or a philosopher out of a man.—Ex.

Assaulted With a Pitch fork.

August Colb of Alexander Valley, charged with having made an assault on Andrew E. Johnson with a pitch fork, has been arrested by Deputy Sheriff Hooten of Healdsburg. The officer brought Kolb down here and took him before Justice Brown who fixed his bond at $500. The case was set for next Tuesday. Kolb did not have the money so the officer escorted him back to Healdsburg where he is expected to raise the bond—Santa Rosa Republican.

Wednesday afternoon on the race track at Napa, while warming up for the 3-year old district trot, Thomas Smith of Vallejo, driving Columbus, and Clarence Hill of Napa, driving Laeona, owned by Fred W. Loeber of Vineland, collided. Both sulkies were wrecked, the men thrown and the shaft entered the left side of Laeona, piercing the left lung. She will die. Hill was badly hurt.

Erasmus Martin of Petaluma while working on a thresher on his father's ranch was violently thrown against the mowing machine and broke his right knee-cap.

Dried Grapes.

A gentleman well informed on the subject informs us that there is likely to be an active demand for grapes for drying. One vineyard south of San Francisco, producing 2,000 tons, has been contracted for at $70 for the dried fruit, which is equal to $15 a ton for the green grapes. This price will satisfy our producers. There will be an unusually large amount of grapes dried in this county, especially in the more northerly vineyards. There is every indication that the yield will be light in the wine making sections, and from all we can hear there is plenty of cooperage for the crop in Sonoma township, and little or no embarrassment is felt on that account in other sections. Growers are confident of better prices for wine in the future.

The Donahue Estate.

The petition of the executors of the Donahue estate for permission to sell all of the property belonging to the estate, including the San Francisco and North Pacific railroad, was continued by Judge Angelotti of the Superior Court of Marin county until next Monday morning.

When the petition is granted bids for the purchase of the road will be invited, subject to the approval of the court.

In speaking about the sale of the road yesterday Attorney Hanlon said: "Bids will be advertised for one month, but I do not know how many bids will be received. I do not think it at all certain that the bankers representing the $4,000,000 will secure the road, however, and probably the 25,000 shares of stock held by the estate will not sell for less than $50 a share."—Examiner.

The Temptation.

To go out of doors in rough weather is not strong, but we are, many of us, compelled to face rough weather frequently. Diseases which arise from a chill are peculiar to no season of the year. This is true, therefore there should be in the closet of every household—what? Not an unmedicated stimulant, absolutely devoid of anything but an excitive action, but a tonic combining, in the effective form of an invigorant and an alterative, the quality of defence against changes of weather. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has three or four properties that no other article of its class possesses. Not only does it relieve the complaints which it eventually cures it fortifies the system against the bad effects of changes of temperature fatally and too often shown in the deadly form of "la grippe;" it produces a radical change in the weakened condition of a system peculiarly liable to be attacked by it, and it tends to provide against the danger resulting from an impoverished condition of the blood and a disordered state of the liver or bowels.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light-house.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorch Trescott are keepers of the Gov Lighthouse at Sandy Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles. Fever, with a dry, dull Cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere shandful of bones." Then she cried for King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Ed. Wegner's Drug-store.

AMPLY CONFIRMED.

EUROPEAN IDEAS VERIFIED IN AMERICA.

The Most Important Subject of the Present day Settled Beyond Question.

The cable dispatches which recently appeared in the daily papers indicating the great interest felt throughout Europe upon a subject of international interest have naturally awakened great attention, not to say excitement, in this city and throughout the land. It is a well-known fact that the demands of modern life have caused a strain which seems to shorten life and undermine health universally. The efforts made abroad to investigate its cause are most commendable, and we are pleased to say have been supplemented by similar efforts in America. Careful inquiry has been made among prominent physicians, and it is surprising what uniformity of opinion is expressed by them all. That opinion seems to be that the great modern disease is kidney trouble, and that the kidneys are the first organs of the body to be attacked by over-exertion or over-indulgence, and the first to become weakened by the grip. That this is a most lamentable fact there can be no doubt, but that these troubles can be prevented and cured the investigations made abroad clearly show. In the interest of humanity we have made similar investigations, and the result is given herewith.

Dr. N. S. Davis said: "People do not know what Bright's disease is. The term is applied popularly to every trouble that even remotely affects the kidneys. There are two forms of the trouble—one an enlargement and the other a shrinking of the kidneys."

Dr. Frank T. Andrews says: "The term Bright's disease covers a great many complaints. In fact, any case of albuminaria is called Bright's disease. The majority of these cases are curable. The reason a man dies of kidney trouble is the inability of the organ to perform its functions."

Dr. S. Clarke declares: "There was a time when any man or woman suffering from any form of kidney trouble had cause for despair. That time has passed. For the past eight years I have treated every variety of kidney trouble in both men and women, and I do not believe there is a case so severe, no matter of how long standing, that it cannot be relieved or cured by the careful and conscientious use of Warner's Safe Cure."

Dr. Charles W. Purdy says: "There are many diseases grouped under the head of Bright's disease of the kidneys. One of the most serious forms is almost always accompanied by heart trouble, which frequently causes the death of the patient. The acute form will kill the patient within a few years unless he receives proper treatment."

Dr. R. A. Gunn, Dean of the United States Medical College, declares: "For years the treatment of Bright's disease has been largely experimental. I am independent enough and frank enough to commend most heartily that great remedy—Warner's Safe Cure."

Dr. A. B. Hosmer affirms: "Acute Bright's disease in children is curable. The kidneys, you see, are waste gates, and when they are partially closed trouble must result."

Dr. Tyre York, of Washington, D. C., asserts: "I think Warner's Safe Cure a great blessing to mankind, and if taken regularly will cure almost any disease of the kidneys. I prescribe it in my practice."

Dr. C. Washington Earle, of Chicago, says: "Diseases of the kidneys may be slight or aggravated. The object to be attained is to limit the over-worked and worn-out organs to as little exercise as possible."

Dr. John W. Mapes, of Paris, Ill., says: "I am a living example of the virtues of Warner's Safe Cure, without which I should long since have been dead."

Throughout the land wherever investigation has been made, the sentiment seems to be the same.

The above unquestioned and unquestionable testimony proves beyond a doubt what Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., boldly declared more than ten years ago, namely, that Bright's disease of the kidneys can be cured, Mr. Warner knew whereof he affirmed, for he himself had been cured of Bright's disease in its worst form. If any reader has peculiar pains, strange sensations, or unaccountable feelings, which far too often announce the coming on of kidney trouble, there is no need to despond; there is every reason for hope. A cure has been found and proven beyond question or the possibility of doubt.

Best Cure For

All disorders of the Throat and Lungs is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has no equal as a cough-cure.

Bronchitis

"When I was a boy, I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary remedies, but recommended me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take a bad cold, and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it."—J. C. Woodson, P. M., Forest Hill, W. Va.

Cough

"For more than twenty-five years, I was a sufferer from lung trouble, attended with coughing so severe at times as to cause hemorrhage, the paroxysms frequently lasting three or four hours. I was induced to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after taking four bottles, was thoroughly cured."—Franz Hoffman, Clay Centre, Kans.

La Grippe

"Last spring I was taken down with la grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and so difficult was my breathing that my breast seemed as if confined in an iron cage. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and no sooner had I began taking it than relief followed. I could not believe that the effect would be so rapid and the cure so complete."—W. H. Williams, Cook City, S. Dak.

Male Mortality in New Orleans.

There seems to be something pretty serious the matter with the men of New Orleans. There are 15,000 more women than men there: nevertheless five men die to every four women. The trouble comes between the ages of twenty one and fifty. Between the ages of thirty and fifty the ratio of mortality is nearly two men to one woman. Among whites and blacks the same curious state of things prevails. The doctors cannot explain why it happens so, but it is evident that there is going to be a corner in males in New Orleans unless some one finds out. The excess of women began after the war, and has been increasing ever since, and especially during the last twelve years.—Atlanta Constitution.

The County Nominations made in Petaluma last Wednesday gave fair satisfaction in Sonoma Township among Republicans if we except that of assemblyman of the seventeenth district. Many of Mr. Davisson's friends feel very sore over his defeat for the nomination.

A stack of grain on the farm of John Vandervleet, in Vallejo township, was fired by an incendiary at an early hour on Wednesday morning and completely destroyed. There were six other stacks within a short distance of the one burned but owing to the timely assistance of neighbors they were saved. The loss was about $100.

The warm weather that has prevailed the past two weeks in Sonoma Valley has been of advantage to wine grapes which were given a back-set by the cool and cloudy weather of July. It is now thought that wine-making will commence about the 1st of October if the weather continues favorable. The wine grape crop as well as Tokay and other table grapes will be short this season.

The Petaluma Fair opens next Monday. The exhibits and races will be better this season than ever before. Mr. and Mrs. Otto Muser came up from San Francisco last Monday to visit their ranch near this place. Mr. Muser, since acquiring his farm some two years ago, has made it the model ranch of Sonoma Valley. A visit to the Muser ranch will repay many of our small farmers for their trouble as there is a lesson to be learned in looking over this well-kept, weedless and beautiful farm, which has underwent a wonderful transformation the past eighteen months.

Shot in the Leg.

J. McGuffin, a blockmaker living in a cabin one mile north of town, was shot in the fleshy part of the left thigh by Martin Lynch last Wednesday morning. The shooting took place in McGuffin's cabin and was brought about by a wordy dispute regarding the relative fighting strength of England and America. McGuffin espoused the cause of Uncle Sam, while Lynch sided with Jonnny Bull. During the course of the argument Lynch drew a pistol and fired two shots, one of which took effect as above described. After the shooting Lynch was arrested by Constable Sparks and lodged in jail. The shooter, however, was released next morning as McGuffin refused to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Lynch, claiming that the pistol went off accidentally.

The Sonoma Schools.

There are at present 92 pupils enrolled in the Grammar department and seventeen in the High School. The teachers and everything else connected with these schools are all that could be desired. All that is now necessary is the hearty co-operation of parents in securing a diligent and earnest application on the part of the scholars to their studies, and a regular attendence should be insisted upon,

The High School students have organized a Literary and Debating Society, and will have public exercises in the school house every Friday from 1:30 to 3 P. M. The following have been elected officers: Hartley Gottenberg, President; Bertha Campbell, Vice President; Stella Johnson, Secretary; Chas. Lowell, Assistant Secretary; Pauline Bates, Treasurer; Prof. Abshire, Sergeant-at-Arms. The following is the preamble to the Constitution of the new society: "We, the undersigned students of the Sonoma Valley High School, in order to improve our minds, extend our vocabulary, lengthen our views for literary work and for educational and recreative work in general, have agreed to organize a society and to ordain and establish this constitution for the government of said society."

The following programme was rendered by the society yesterday afternoon: Song, society; recitation, Emily Potter; essay, "Russian Peasants," Peter Gordenker; vocal duet, Pauline Bates and Stella Johnson; Debate, "Resolved, That foreigners should not be granted the right of suffrage." Those who argued in the affirmative were Miss Eva Prunty and Chas. Lowell. Negative, Miss Edith Chase and William Prunty.

The Assembly Contest.

The result of the contest for the nomination of Assemblyman in the Seventeenth district at the Republican Convention in Petaluma last Wednesday was a surprise to many Republican voters of Sonoma Township, where both of the contestants—D. D. Davisson and M. K. Cady—reside. At the primaries held a few days before the convention met the Republicans of Sonoma Township showed their preference for Mr. Davisson over Mr. Cady. The contest for the nomination at the primaries between Messrs. Davisson and Cady was fought by the respective friends of each with an intensity of feeling never before witnessed at a Republican primary in Sonoma Towaship, with the result that Mr. Davisson was shown to be the choice of the Republicans of the township, but for all that Mr. Cady carried off the honors, much to the disappointment of many local Republicans who claim that as the fight for the nomination was between two home men the preference should have been given to the most popular of the two. The feeling among many Republicans is very bitter and may lead to the election of a Democratic Assemblyman in a Republican district. We publish this item as a piece of news.

Foutts to be Tried for Perjury.

A dispatch from Santa Rosa says that Geo. Foutts, who is now serving a five-years sentence in the penitentiary for arson committed in this town, will be brought back from Folsom, where he is serving his term of imprisonment, and arraigned before the Superior Court on a charge of perjury. Foutts, it will be recollected, when he was first arrested a couple of years ago, made a confession to Detective Curtin, in which he stated that he, together with other parties, fired the old railroad roundhouse in this city. On this confession he was tried and convicted. When his alleged accomplices, Leroy Manuel and Wm. C. Green Jr., were subsequently put on trial, he refused to testify—in other words, when he was put upon the stand, his memory had failed him and to all questions put by the prosecution he answered "I don't recollect." It is for this he is to be tried for perjury. From a legal standpoint, for the life of us we cannot see how he can be convicted of perjury when his only crime appears to be a loss of memory. There is no doubt in the minds of many that he lied when he said he could not recollect, but how are you going to prove it? Will somebody versed in legal lore answer this question?

Judge Shattuck's Funeral.

Anderson of Fresno who preached an eloquent and touching sermon. Many beautiful floral offerings were sent by friends and relatives. The church was crowded with mourners, many coming from a distance to pay their last respects to the distinguished dead. SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, AUG. 27, 1892.

PATTI'S WONDROUS WARDROBE.

Her Collection of Emeralds Puts to Shame the Majority of Royal Gems.

Patti's wardrobe is something that fashion writers rave over. At every performance she of course wears the newest concert costume. In the opera that follows she wears the dress requisite for the part she plays. The concert costumes are the productions of the first Parisian milliner, and one may be sure that the wily milliner, getting an order from Patti, would exert himself for this queen of song as he would for no crowned head.

Her jewels are the most elaborate worn by any woman outside of royalty, and even royalty's gems fade before her matchless collection of emeralds. In some concerts Mme. Patti wears a costume of pink and silver brocade, over which is worn a delicate green satin de imperatrice. With this costume she wears a dog collar of emeralds set with diamonds, a bouquet of roses made of diamonds and emeralds completely covering the front of her bodice. Also a tiara, garniture and comb of emeralds and diamonds. This bit of jeweled ornament is said to be worth over $50,000. It is a peculiarity of Patti's that she will wear nothing in the way of decoration but what is absolutely real.

The jewel box and jewels in "Faust" are her own, and the pearls are positively real. Her courier, whenever she sings, is on the stage, waits for madame in the wings and accompanies her from the stage to the dressing room—that is, when her careful husband, Signor Nicolini, is not around. He is very careful of his precious wife, and she is never on the stage but that he is an intent observer of everything that is going on.

Patti's passion, of course, is her appearance before the public. She is one of those creatures who, without the excitement of public applause, could hardly exist. The applause of the public is positively meat and drink for her. There is no debutante more eager to know whether she has done well than is Patti at this day. She comes off the stage smiling and pleased.

Her eyes sparkle, and the first thing she asks her husband is: "Well, was that good? Listen how pleased they are." On being reassured that she is the darling of the public's heart, she is in an ecstasy of pleasure, and for the next performance she is all the more eager to do her best. It is this wonderful desire to be at her best that upholds her in her magnificent art.

There are few people who have achieved the fortune, the fame and the great notoriety that Patti has who would deny themselves the many human privileges that she does merely to preserve her voice and to be able to maintain the matchless charm of her art.

At every hotel where rooms are engaged for herself special stipulation is made and rooms selected for her servants as well. The price is never an object. Mme. Patti and suite generally occupy about ten rooms and a parlor in every city in which she sings. She gives two concerts a week, and never travels on the day she sings. She requires perfect rest and refuses to speak to any one on the day of a concert.—Spare Moments.

The Doctor and His Patient.

Dr. P—— enjoys a very large practice, and hardly finds time to take his much needed rest.

One day Dr. P——, who had company to dinner, sat quietly chatting in a corner of the drawing room, when he was told that a patient had come to see him who was strongly recommended by some fellow practitioners. The doctor submitted with a bad grace and stepped into his surgery.

Our physician was in the habit of ascertaining the condition of the patient by asking him to count, and generally stopped him at thirty or thirty-five—quite long enough for the purpose. This time also Dr. P—— asked his patient to count. Time passed on, and the guests began to feel alarmed at his protracted absence. One of them opened the surgery door. Dr. P—— had gone to sleep in his armchair, and the patient had counted up to 8,642.—Matin.

Chinese Surgery.

Like most things in China, the practice of surgery differs considerably from that in vogue in less enlightened western countries. Bone setting in the Celestial empire is a complicated affair, and doubtless much more efficacious than European methods. In setting a fractured limb the surgeon does not attempt to bring the bones together, but merely wraps the limb in red clay, inserting some strips of bamboo into the clay. These strips are swathed in bandages, and in the outer bandage the head of a live chicken is placed. Here comes in the superior science of the Celestial. After the bandage has been secured the fowl is beheaded and its blood is allowed to penetrate the fracture, for it nourishes the fractured limb and is "heap good medicine."—London Hospital.

America's First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse built on this continent was at St. Augustine, Fla. Its chief use was as a lookout, whence the Spanish people of the town could see vessels approaching from Spain or get notice of the coming of foes in time to run away. The tower attracted the attention of Francis Drake as he was sailing along the coast with his fleet of high pooped ships on his way home from pillaging the cities of the Spanish main. So he stopped long enough to loot the town and destroy what he could not take away.—Washington Star.

What Ailed Her.

At the excursion given the "Little Mothers" the other day a four-year-old baby towed by the big sister was made ill by the ride on the cars. Vomiting was the result.

"You were sick at your stomach, were you not, dear?" said one of the custodians kindly.

"No, I wasn't," explained the wee mite; "my eat was too near my tongue."—New York Recorder.

Auroras Forty Miles High.

The scientists of the Royal Danish academy have made public the results of some interesting experiments, which were conducted for the sole purpose of ascertaining the exact, or at any rate the approximate, height of the aurora borealis. At Godthaab M. Adam Paulsen, with two theodolites situated only four miles apart, found that the height of different auroral displays varied from one to forty miles! Near Cape Farewell, with a base line of three-fourths of a mile in length, the best calculations obtainable placed different auroræ at from one to ten miles in height; at Spitzbergen it was shown that they range from a height of one-third of a mile to eighteen miles.

In this case it will not prove uninteresting to mention some of the remarkble opinions entertained by the early experimenters in this line. Flogel estimated the height of the various auroræ observed by him at from 90 to 310 miles above the earth; Reimann found that one observed by him was at least 500 miles high, and Nordenskjold's earlier deductions gave such phenomena an average height of 125 miles. Then Leemstrome came forward with the announcement that he had taken notes and observations on an auroral display that was not separated from the earth by more than 1,000 feet, while Hildebrandson concurred to the extent of declaring that many of the displays were below the clouds.—St. Louis Republic.

J. W. RAGSDALE, Plaintiff,
vs.
F. G. NAGLE, Defendant.

The plaintiff for cause of action against the defendant, alleges: That on the 16th day of November, 1888, said defendant, F. G. Nagle, received from G. W. Call the sum of one hundred (100) dollars, the property of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau; that of said money said defendant, Nagle, returned to said Bureau the sum of $20 only, and retained, and ever since has retained the balance of said $100 to-wit, $80, for his own use, and that no part of said $80 has ever been paid; that said Bureau assigned said claim to plaintiff.

For a further and separate cause of action plaintiff alleges: That defendant is indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $80 for money had and received from G. W. Call, November 16th, 1888, for the use and benefit of the Sonoma County Abstract Bureau, which claim has been assigned to the plaintiff, and that no part of the same has ever been paid.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays for a judgment against defendant for the sum of $80 and costs.
